TRAPEZOHEDRAL HEMIHERAL DIVISION Trapezohedral hemihedral forms may be conceived to be developed by dividing each holohedral form by the principal and all the secondary symmetry planes into 24 parts, then suppressing all faces lying wholly within alternate parts thus obtained, and extending all the remaining faces until they meet in edges or corners. As the dihexagonal pyramid is the only hexagonal form with 24 faces, it is evident that a dihexagonal pyramid face is the only one-pia. 49.--Hexagonal that can he wholly within one of trapezohedron containthe parts obtained by dividing a ing the form from which hexagonal crystal in the manner it is..
