Excerpt: .Mayor has practically given you the keys of the city. The same keys fit the Produce Exchange of Toledo. You will not, however, need the keys today; the doors are wide open. The interests of the grain and hay people are so closely allied that you need no separate welcome here. However, we bid you welcome. one and all, separately and collectively. I shall not say much about your business; you know more about that than I do. I know a hayseed when I see one, and I have heard of Maud Muller. So there is nothing in that line I can say that will do you much good. I am sure you do not want to listen to long speeches here; you will do better to follow the Mayor s advice and get out on the interurban lines and on the lake. He did not say anything. however, about an airship. That will take you up. but if you behave, it will never take you down very far. I shall in conclusion say with the Mayor that the citizens of Toledo bid you a hearty welcome, and we hope thin your stay will be so pleasant that you will wish to return here to hold your convention some other time in the future. After Mr. Southworth finished, President Morgan said: We have reason to be very thankful today for the brilliant gentlemen who are with us. I think, however. I have:1 Mr. Collins...
