He is taken with Pen s merriment and loose songs, but not less taken with the sterling worth of Coventry. He is jolly with a drunken sailor, but listens with interest and patience, as he rides the Essex roads, to the story of a Quaker s spiritual trials and conrictions. He lends a critical ear to the discourse of kings and royal dukes. He spends an evening at Vauxhall with Kiliigrew and young Newport--loose company, says lie, but worth a man s being in for once, to know the nature of it, and their manner of talk and lives. And when a rag boy lights him home, he examines him about his business and other ways...
